I had to delete the "yahoo" crap. LOL... I was searching for information for an article. I had no idea that I'd get bombarded with messages from so many people who are seriously seeking a mate. I'd would have deleted the profile sooner if I had realized. I suppose I feel a little guilty considering some of them claimed to be soldiers in Iraq. I'm sure they'll find someone w/o me giving them a new set of issues to deal with... lol :) Good bye and good riddance to the annoying emails letting me know someone had viewed, saved, or sent a message to me. For those enjoying the service being provided by Yahoo personals... best wishes.
